State law requires construction to be performed by licensed contractors. You have applied for a permit under an exemption to that law. The exemption allows you, as the owner of your property, to act as your own contractor with certain restrictions even though you do not have a license.

You may build or improve a one-family or two-family residence or a farm outbuilding. You may also build or improve a commercial building, provided your costs do not exceed $10,000.00.

The building or residence must be for your own use or occupancy. It may not be built or substantially improved for sale or rent. If you sell or rent a building you have built or substantially improved within 2 years after the construction is complete, the law presumes that you built or substantially improved it for sale or rent, which is in violation of this exemption.

You must provide direct, onsite supervision of the construction yourself. You may not hire an unlicensed person to act as your contractor or to supervise people working on your building. It is your responsibility to make sure that persons employed by you have licenses required by state law or municipal licensing ordinances or both. You may not delegate the responsibility for supervising work to an unlicensed contractor or to a licensed contractor who is not licensed to perform such work being done. Any person working on your building who is not licensed must work under your direct supervision and must be employed by you. Which means that you must deduct FICA and withholding tax and provide workman's compensation for that employee, all as prescribed by law.

Your construction must comply with all applicable laws, ordinances, building codes and zoning regulations.
